The Frame & Hexy shapes are cut by waterjet. This method uses a high-velocity jet of water or a combination of water and an abrasive substance to cut the different shapes. This technique has several advantages, including its capability to cut a wide range of materials with minimal heat-affected zones. Using this process doesn't generate hazardous fumes or dust during the process. As a result, water jet cutting is recognized as an environmentally friendly technique that does not produce harmful byproducts or waste.
